

In a downsized construction industry, cutting costs has become critical to survival, but safety should not be one of the programs on the chopping block.

One organization that hasn't downsized is OSHA! In fact, OSHA's new directive from Washington is to direct more resources to enforcement and to assess higher penalties for employers who are indifferent about protecting workers. Get up to date on construction safety and OSHA by attending the 6th Annual Central Alabama Construction Safety Conference.

This conference is FREE thanks to the generous contributions of the exhibitors. Please take time to visit their exhibits to see the latest in safety products and services. They can be a valuable source of safety information.

And a special "thank you" to these sponsors:
