APPENDIX A. ALLOCATION OF BLS OES EMPLOYMENT DATA TO 6-DIGIT NAICS

Table A-1 shows a simplified example of how OSHA mapped BLS OES employment data onto 6-digit NAICS industries, as discussed earlier in Section V. To construct the Table, OSHA used a hypothetical industry with the following characteristics: 500 employees of a given occupation of interest in the 3-digit NAICS 300 (an imaginary NAICS industry used for example purposes only); 100 employees in the 4-digit NAICS 3002, and 400 employees in the 4-digit NAICS 3003; and 100 employees in the 5-digit NAICS 30022, and 400 employees in the 5-digit NAICS 30034. To estimate the number of employees from the single occupation of interest in each of the hypothetical 6-digit NAICS industries, the 500 employees in the single occupation of interest were allotted proportionally based on an industry's share of total employment. For this example, OSHA supposed the 5-digit NAICS 30022, with 100 employees in the occupation of interest, had 3,000 total employees in all occupations. OSHA supposed this 5-digit NAICS contained two 6-digit NAICS industries, with one 6-digit NAICS industry, 300222, containing 1,000 (1/3) of the total employment, all occupations, as compared to the other 6-digit NAICS industry, 300223 which contains 2,000 (2/3) of the total employment. Thus, the 100 employees in the occupation of interest were allotted proportionally based on total employment of all occupations in these 6-digit NAICS industries. One-third, or 33, were allotted to NAICS 300222 and 2/3, or 67, were allotted to NAICS 300223.

In another part of this example, OSHA shows that the 5-digit NAICS 30034, with 400 employees in the occupation of interest, only contained one 6-digit NAICS industry – NAICS 300344. So, that 6-digit NAICS industry was allotted 100 percent of the 400 employees in the occupation of interest. OSHA allotted zero employees to the remaining 6-digit NAICS industries contained in the example table, since, in this example, the 4-digit NAICS 3004 and the 5-digit NAICS 30023 did not contain any of the 500 employees of interest in imaginary NAICS 300.

Table A-1. Example Allocation of BLS OES Employment Data to 6-Digit NAICS

4-Digit NAICS	5-Digit NAICS	6-Digit NAICS	Total Employment, All Occupations	Employment of a Single Occupation of Interest
				3-Digit BLS Total	4-Digit BLS Total	5-Digit BLS Total	Estimated Share BLS Total	Employees Allocated

Total Employment in the Occupation of Interest			—	500	500	500	—	500

The methodology for extrapolating from BLS' 3-, 4-, and 5-digit NAICS data to 6-digit NAICS code data begins with identifying which 6-digit NAICS industry should be allocated employees from the 3-, 4-, and 5-digit NAICS data. In some cases, it is clear from the data which 6-digit NAICS industry should be allotted data from a higher-level NAICS code. For instance, if there are 100 employees in a 3-digit NAICS code and 100 employees in one of its constituent 4-digit NAICS code, then all 100 employees from the 3-digit NAICS code are allocated to that 4-digit NAICS code.

In other cases, it is not so clear which 6-digit NAICS industry should be allotted data from a higher-level NAICS sector. In these cases, OSHA makes preliminary judgements about which 6-digit NAICS industry or industries, out of several that may map onto a higher-level NAICS code, would be most likely to employ a certain profession based on the pattern of employment figures reported at the 3-, 4- and 5-digit level. For example, if BLS reports 100 employees for a 3-digit NAICS code, 80 employees for one of its constituent 4-digit NAICS code and has no other data at the 4- or 5-digit level, then an additional 20 employees must work in another 4-digit NAICS code. In cases like this, OSHA used its best professional judgment to preliminarily identify which of the possible NAICS codes would most likely include the additional employees. For example, OSHA has judged that tree trimmers would be more likely to work in NAICS 561790 Other Services to Buildings and Dwellings than NAICS 561740 Carpet and Upholstery Cleaning Services.

APPENDIX B. DETAILED PROFILE TABLES

This section contains the same profile data as in Section V. (Potentially Affected Entities) but at the 6-digit NAICS code level rather than sector level.

Table B-1 shows the total firms, establishments, and employees potentially in scope of a standard based on the draft regulatory framework.

APPENDIX D. ECONOMIC IMPACTS BY SIX-DIGIT NAICS CODE

This appendix summarizes profits and economic impacts at the six-digit NAICS code level.

Table D-1 shows estimated profit rates by NAICS, based on IRS (2016) Statistics of Income (SOI) Tax Stats - Corporation Source Book profit data for 2000 through 2013. Profit rates in a given year are calculated as

$$\frac{\text{Net Income (less Deficit) from IRS Table 1 (Returns with and without Net Income)}}{\text{Total Receipts from IRS Table 1 (Returns with and without Net Income)}}$$

If data are not available for that NAICS digit-level, it finds the least-granular NAICS digit-level with data (for instance, data may not be available on the six-digit level but are available at the four-digit level). The profit rates are then averaged across 2000 to 2013 to estimate the typical profit in any given year.

Source: OSHA estimate based on IRS (2016).

Notes: IRS profit data are available at varying NAICS levels; Where an estimate is not available, the next-least granular NAICS with data available is used. "ND" indicates that no data are available.

The average profit rates for each NAICS from Table D-1 are multiplied by revenue estimates from the U.S. Census' (2015) Statistics of U.S. Businesses (inflated to 2018 dollars using the BEA (2019) GDP deflator) to estimate total profits. The revenue used and resulting estimated profits are shown in Table D-2.
