SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

The Department of Labor, as part of its continuing effort to reduce paperwork and respondent (i.e., employer) burden, conducts a preclearance consultation program to provide the public with an opportunity to comment on proposed and continuing information collection requirements in accordance with the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (44 U.S.C. 3506(c)(2)(A)). This program ensures that information is in the desired format, reporting burden (time and costs) is minimal, collection instruments are clearly understood, and OSHA's estimate of the information collection burden is accurate. The Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (the OSH Act) (29 U.S.C. 651 et seq.) authorizes information collection by employers as necessary or appropriate for enforcement of the OSH Act or for developing information regarding the causes and prevention of occupational injuries, illnesses, and accidents (29 U.S.C. 657). The OSH Act also requires that OSHA obtain such information with minimum burden upon employers, especially those operating small businesses, and to reduce to the maximum extent feasible unnecessary duplication of efforts in obtaining information (29 U.S.C. 657).

The collections of information in the PSM Standard are necessary for implementing the requirements of the Standard. The information is used by employers to assure that processes using highly hazardous chemicals with the potential for a catastrophic release are operated as safely as possible. The employer must thoroughly consider all facets of a process, as well as the involvement of workers in that process. Employers analyze processes so that they can identify and control problems that could lead to a major release, fire, or explosion.

II. Special Issues for Comment

OSHA has a particular interest in comments on the following issues:

- Whether the proposed information collection requirements are necessary for the proper performance of the Agency's functions, including whether the information is useful;
- The accuracy of OSHA's estimate of the burden (time and costs) of the information collection requirements, including the validity of the methodology and assumptions used;
- The quality, utility, and clarity of the information collected; and
- Ways to minimize the burden on employers who must comply; for example, by using automated or other technological information collection and transmission techniques.

III. Proposed Actions

OSHA is requesting that OMB extend its approval of the information collection requirements contained in the Standard on Process Safety Management of Highly Hazardous Chemicals (PSM) (29 CFR 1910.119). OSHA is proposing to decrease the existing burden hour estimate for the collection of information requirements specified in the PSM Standard from 47,852,750 hours to 3,632,487 hours (a total reduction of 44,220,263 hours). In determining the burden hours associated with this ICR, OSHA relied on information in the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Risk Management Program (RMP) database to estimate the number of establishments and processes that must comply with the paperwork requirements for the PSM Standard. The RMP showed a reduction in establishments and processes; due mainly to efforts of affected employers to find substitute substances for the PSM chemicals and to reduce inventories of chemicals and flammables, but also because the original estimates by the Agency of the average number of processes per establishment proved to be much higher than can be consistent with, or supported by, data in the RMP database today. In addition, after the PSM rule was promulgated and paperwork packages were updated every three years, OSHA had increased the estimated number of affected establishments proportionately with increases reported in the number of establishments in an industry over time, without regard to employers reacting to the PSM Standard.

For example, if the number of establishments in an industry increased from 10,000 to 12,000 between 1994 and 2006, OSHA increased the estimated number of PSM-affected establishments in that industry by 20 percent.

Type of Review: Extension of a currently approved collection.

Number of Respondents: 7,562. Frequency: On occasion.

Average Time per Response: Varies from three minutes to generate and maintain training certification records to 2,454.4 hours to establish and implement a management-of-change program.

Estimated Total Burden Hours: 3.632.487.

Estimated Cost (Operation and Maintenance): $0.
